Operatic Artists Featured at 1988 Spring Conference

Published 70 years ago this October, My Ántonia has become a classic of Pioneer life and history. Sometimes overlooked is the passionate background of music in this novel. Cather uses plantation melodies, cowboy songs and opera as background for her story of strength and perseverance. In this Spring Conference we endeavor to give you a taste of the melodies that provide a setting for Ántonia’s heroic achievement. We feel that in no better way can we Celebrate Nebraska — its strength, its joy, its fortitude — in 1988.

Daniel McKinney, tenor, will sing “Le Donna è mobile” from Rigoletto and the part of Alfredo from La Traviata.

Mr. McKinney studied with Patrick H. Goeser, Professor of Voice at Fort Hays, Kansas State University and with Herald Starck, Chairman, Department of Voice, University of Iowa. He won a voice scholarship at Fort Hays in 1973-74 and was the state winner of the KMTA Voice Competition in Ottawa, Kansas, in 1973. He did graduate teaching at The University of Iowa. He has performed in various operas both in Kansas and Iowa. Recently he has been tenor soloist for St. Matthew Passion and Messiah in Bethany College at Lindsborg, Kansas.

June Schock, coloratura soprano, will sing the part of Violetta in La Traviata. Ms. Schock holds a Master of Music degree from the University of Colorado, Boulder, where she studied with Professor Louis Cunningham.

In 1976, Ms. Schock won both the Metropolitan Opera and San Francisco Opera Regional Auditions. After singing for Luciano Pavarotti in New York City in March 1981, she was invited to participate in the Pavarotti International Voice Competition. In addition to performing throughout the Midwest as a recitalist and concert soloist, Ms. Schock has sung the role “Olympia” from Tales of Hoffmann by Offenbach with the San Francisco Opera, 20 performances of the “Queen of the Night” from Mozart’s Magic Flute in the German opera houses of Kiel, Mannheim and Hannover, and the additional roles of “Fiordiligi,” “Musetta” and “Madame Golden-trill.” German critics said of her performance as “Queen of the Night,” “her warm dramatic coloratura was effortless and virtuosic. Even with her first entrance the hall resounded with bravos!”

She now teaches at Hastings College.

Marshall Christensen, baritone, will sing “The Last Rose of Summer” from Martha and “O Promise Me” from Robin Hood. He will also sing the part of Petr Ger-mont in La Traviata.

Mr. Christensen began his formal vocal studies at the University of Nebraska where he studied with Dr. Arthur Westbrook and graduated with a degree in Music. During his years at the University, he performed in numerous shows and concert productions and was featured soloist on radio and television. He was soloist at the First Plymouth Congregational Church in Lincoln.

Upon graduation he continued his studies in California with opera coach Harold Hurbut and included a session with Metropolitan opera star, John Charles Thomas.

During his military tour, he was in band Special Services as a trumpeter and vocal soloist. A highlight of his military tour was a command performance for Continental Armies Commander General Maxwell G. Taylor for which he was awarded a special commendation.

Following military service he lived in California and Minnesota where he performed in opera and concert productions with major musical ensembles. He was baritone soloist with the 3M Symphony Orchestra for 13 years, appearing in concerts in the Twin Cities and also on tour in adjoining states. Christensen was a contracted soloist in churches and synagogues in Minneapolis and St. Paul for over 20 years.

Mr. Christensen is now in active farming and farm management in Nebraska, but finds time to perform in local productions as well as church work.

Ten artists from the Hastings Symphony Orchestra, Dr. James Johnson, conductor, will furnish music for the operatic concert.

Dr. Harrold Shifflet, retired from the Speech and Drama Department of Hastings College, will narrate the script for the evening’s music.

Tribute

To My Ántonia H. W. Boynton in Bookman, December 1918 paid this tribute:

It is true to the Nebraskan soil of her own childhood, and therefore true to America and the world. On the surface it also might be called artless and deficient in action. But here in fact it differs sharply from a chronicle like “The Manse at Barren Rocks.” Miss Cather is an accomplished artist. Her method is that of the higher realism; it rests not at all upon the machinery of dramatic action which is so right and essential for romance. Her “Song of the Lark,” a triumphal story if there ever was one, lacked the rounded artifice that lures a big public — lacked, above all, the conventional “happy ending.” So does My Ántonia, which, even more frankly a portrait than its predecessor, is a portrait of a woman.

Miss Cather has owned as among the most vivid of her experiences on the Nebraska ranch of her childhood, her impressions of the Scandinavian and Bohemian settlers who were among her neighbors. Thea Kronborg in “The Song of the Lark” was of Swedish parentage. Ántonia is a Bohemian girl on a Nebraska ranch. Her father, a musician and dreamer, has no heart in the new life and presently kills himself as the only way out. The mother and the elder son are ambitious and unscrupulous. Ántonia is the one well-rounded member of the family; somehow she joins her father’s sensitivity to the sturdiness of her mother, and contributes that magic something of her own that is necessary to transmute mere characteristics into personality.

She is not infallible or protected by a special Providence, does not push forward to an obvious success or happiness. On the contrary she passes her first years of grown girlhood as a farm worker, becomes a “hired girl” in the neighboring town, runs away with a flashy drummer who deserts her before the birth of her child, and later marries an undistinguished and not especially successful farmer of her own race. But she is unconquerable; and she lives through everything to transmit that superb health and courage of mind and body to a great family who are bound to make their worthy contribution to America. It is in this guise, as “a rich mine of life, like the founders of early races,” that we see her fulfilled and justified.

Clearly, the effectiveness of such a portrait depends in an unusual sense upon the skill of the painter. Casual as her touches seem, no stroke is superfluous or wrongly emphasized; and we may be hardly conscious how much of the total effect of the portrait is owing to the quiet beauty and purity of the artist’s style.

Norma Ross Walter Scholarship Winner

Karen Hartmann, first winner of the Norma Ross Walter Scholarship in 1987, receives top grades at the University of Michigan. Enrolled in the Honors program in English, she has an average of 4.0 for the first semester. Karen, active in a college church fellowship, works as a library assistant. She plans to teach high school English. The 1988 winner will be announced in March. Each year one Nebraska high school senior girl graduate who wishes to major in English at the university of her choice, receives a scholarship which, if she maintains her grade average and continues in English, would amount to $8,000.00 for her four year term.

See the special Cather display on May 7 at the Webster County Museum, 4th and Franklin. Allow 30 minutes.

Fall Symposium at B.Y.U.

Plans are underway for a national symposium on Willa Cather at Brigham Young University September 15-17, 1988. The event will be sponsored by the Center for Family and Community History at the university, and papers on family, community, and family history in the works of Willa Cather are invited. Anyone interested in Cather is, of course, invited to attend and may receive future mailings about the symposium by writing to Professor Glade Hunsaker, Center for Family and Community History, 335 KMB, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah 84602.

Anyone wishing to submit a paper for consideration should submit two copies of a 9-10 page manuscript and a short abstract (25-50 words) by June 15, 1988 to Professor Marilyn Arnold, Graduate Studies, D-341 ASB, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah 84602. The symposium will also feature invited lectures and papers by Mildred R. Bennett, James Woodress, David Stouck, Susan J. Rosowski, John J. Murphy, Marilyn Arnold, Patricia Yongue, and Bruce Baker.

In addition to its “scholarly” aspects, the symposium will offer related cultural events including performances of music important in Cather’s fiction and readings of her poetry. The week of the symposium will be “Willa Cather Week” in Provo and the surrounding area, with displays and discussions featured in bookstores, schools, libraries, and other public buildings.

Scholar for a Day

Dr. Virgil Albertini, professor of English at Northwest Missouri State University and a recognized authority on Willa Cather, served as Scholar for a Day at Humboldt, Nebraska High School on Tuesday, February 23. On a grant from the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities, Dr. Albertini talked to the entire high school, freshmen through seniors, throughout the morning. The first 90 minutes was a discussion of the legacy of Willa Cather, her life and writings with a slide show of the Cather home area around Red Cloud. The second period afforded a close look at her primary prairie novels: My Ántonia and O Pioneers!

Superintendent Darrell Montgomery and his staff provided kolaches. Congratulations to him and his school.

Please let us know what you are doing to promote Cather.

Quilt Exhibit

Members of the Nebraska State Quilt Guild, under the leadership of Paulette Peters of Elkhorn, will exhibit 10 quilts at the Burlington Depot during Spring Conference. The Guild lists 850 members throughout Nebraska. Quilts to be exhibited are those mentioned in One of Ours, My Ántonia and "Old Mrs. Harris."

You will see Mahalely's quilts from One of Ours: "log-cabin," "laurel leaf," and "blazing star," a watermelon design and a beans and corn quilt from My Ántonia and a scrap quilt like the one referred to in "Old Mrs. Harris."

A page about the Cather childhood home appears in Historic Preservation, March/April issue. We owe this fine presentation to Ann Billesbach, curator of the Cather Historical Center in Red Cloud.

From Kentucky . . .

Ron Butler moved from Henderson Community College to Owensboro Community College in 1987. For one of his first activities he taught an adult education class on Cather.

What About Willa Cather in Italy?

These books by Willa Cather may be found in Italian translations today:

My Ántonia, La Tartaruga edizioni, 1985. This is a new translation with an 8 page foreword by Goffredo Fofi. A former translation of this novel came out in 1947 and is now out of print. In 1983, Mondadori published a cheap paperback translation of My Mortal Enemy which had a brief biography of Willa Cather. This book is now out of print and is unavailable on the market. Death Comes for the Archbishop first came out in 1936 and was reprinted several times prior to the 1980's.

Previously translated were: O Pioneers!, 1933; One of Ours, 1955; The Professor's House, 1950; Shadows on the Rock, 1936 and Obscure Destinies, 1935, reprinted in 1956. The latter was a collection of Willa Cather's short stories plus Lucy Gayheart and A Lost Lady. All the books listed above are out of print today and it is impossible to find them in Italian bookshops.

Among literary scholarship there is one essay on Willa Cather by Salvatore Rosati in L'Ombra del Padre, Roma 1958. This is a full length essay on the theme of Willa Cather and tradition. Angela Bianchini published in 1963 an essay on Willa Cather and Europe which was included in Spiriti Costretti, Firenze 1963. We must not forget that Elio Vittorini, the famous Italian writer and among the first scholars of American Literature, included Willa Cather's "The Sculptor's Funeral" in Americana, the important anthology that first introduced American writers in Italy.

Nowadays it would be wise to pay more attention to Willa Cather and see new editions of such everlasting books.
